perhaps rather against it, but at any rate this step constitutes a satisfactory indication that the parties are coming nearer and nearer, and that if all goes as well as at present they will most likely in due course arrive at some common ground on which they can agree to work out their future together. For the sake of everybody concerned this would be highly advantageous; there can be only very few, if any, who do not sincerely hope for the day when Sarawak and British North Borneo will come to some such understanding. What North Borneo most urgently needs, as all admit, is abundance of labourers; while Sarawak is over-crowded with good Dyak material, and thus may in a sense be said to have the whip-hand, as long as Emigration is prohibited. Incidentally, it may be noted (for whatever it is worth) that no word of the rapprochement was ever heard until after the time when the Hongkong Telegraph of 11th November last, in which was a leader suggesting a compromise, would be in the hands of readers in England, where of course the question must be decided; previously the idea had never even been suggested, and the propositions of Rajah Brooke were floated. That, however, is only a detail.

One cause of serious doubt and real consternation is Lord Brassey's surprising statement that North Borneo is a remarkably poor country as regards natural resources. Lord Brassey is a Director of the Chartered Company, and therefore one of the last men on earth to run down the place wantonly; moreover, he has had exceptional opportunities of knowing what he is talking about. On the other hand, apart from all that has been said in times past, apart from all the reports of experts, there is at present in the B. N. B. Herald, a publication practically run by the Company, a series of articles—in the "unofficial" part of it, certainly—dealing exhaustively with the resources of the country, in flat contradiction of the pessimistic view adopted by Lord Brassey. For instance, as to coffee-growing land the writer of the Herald says:

"There is within fairly easy reach at least 500,000 acres, while if a railway was constructed this area could be easily doubled." Further, it is claimed that there are large tracts suitable for sugar; and as for Manila hemp, the last issue of the Herald just to hand declares that "there is a trifle of three or four million acres adapted for that crop," and "the prosperity of the country is within grasp whenever it may be worth anybody's while to put out a hand and reach it." These are strong words, too strong to be lightly explained away. If half of this is correct then Borneo is by no means a poor country, and has been grossly libelled by one of its own leading men. But which story is true? The two are diametrically opposed, and altogether too far asunder for both to contain even the germs of truth; the North Borneo Company, in fairness to the country itself and in honesty to the shareholders, should at once recognise the obligation of either establishing the favourable or accepting the unfavourable verdict. If the Herald is right, then we have the remarkable spectacle of a man who has spent some time in the country and has personally investigated its resources, and has held a high official position in connection with it since 1887, giving public utterance to most misleading and injurious allegations; whereas if Lord Brassey is right, then we have a newspaper which is the recognised organ of the Company, publishing false assertions calculated to defraud people of as much money as their credulity allows them to throw away. It is a perfectly just principle, now embodied in the statute law of several countries, that the authors of bogus prospectuses are guilty of actual fraud; and the public have a right to demand a reliable declaration of fact from some disinterested source. It is difficult in a case where the public officials are the interested parties; but it will not do for the North Borneo Government to shield itself behind a haughty officialism and refuse to say anything. This is a public matter, and the public have a right to insist on a settlement of the question, and on a full explanation from Lord Brassey as well as from the Company. A great many interests are at stake. Not to go any further, a railway is projected, and people are being urged, with something more than the mere tacit consent of the Borneo Government, to subscribe very large sums for it; yet one of the Directors of that very Government asserts openly that the country is a remarkably poor one. How can Lord Brassey consistently retain his seat on the Board? If he is sincere in his published opinion of the value of the property, he is conniving at a swindle in getting further capital poured into it on the faith of rosy promises. How can he reconcile it with his conscience to thus blow hot and cold?

MR. GLADSTONE.
London, February 28th.

Mr. Gladstone had an audience with her Majesty to-day for the purpose, it is generally reported, of tendering his resignation, though this is denied.

The Radical Press is divided in its expressions of opinions as regards his successor, in some instances favouring Lord Rosebery, in others objecting to the selection of a Peer.

The House of Lords has adopted the House of Commons' amendments to the Bill, but with the addition of further amendments to the Bill, which will necessitate its return to the House of Commons.

SENSATIONAL SPEECH IN THE ITALIAN CHAMBER.

Sigismondo Crispi created a sensation in the Chamber by declaring that the revolutionary movement in Sicily was hatched in France by conspirators who relied on the outbreak of a continental war (to be initiated by Russia) by means of which it was intended that a Sicilian port should be conceded to Russia.

A SICILIAN RISING FRUSTRATED.
A rising in Sicily had been fixed for the middle of February but the Government got wind of it and frustrated the attempt.

ANARCHISM.
PARIS, February 22nd.

A number of surprise visits have been made by the police, both in Paris and in the country, at houses known to be frequented by Anarchists, several of whom have been arrested.

A traveller giving the name of Rabaly in two hotels in the Rue St. Jacques and Rue St. Martin concealed a bomb behind the door of each building; then he disappeared, leaving letters informing the police in St. Jacques and St. Martin districts about the bombs, and adding that he was about to commit suicide. The police made examination, and prevented the St. Martin bomb from doing any harm but the St. Jacques bomb exploded injuring three men.

THE FINANCIAL CRISIS IN INDIA.

Telegraphic information arrived in Hongkong to-day stating that the Indian Government had announced a general duty of five per cent, to be imposed on all imports, including bar silver, but excluding cotton goods and cotton yarn.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

SEVERAL districts of Tonkin are suffering seriously from prolonged drought.

M. J. B. TRIAU, vice-Resident of Tonkin, a very popular official, died of small-pox on Saturday, February 17th.

THE Haiphong Municipality and Chamber of Commerce refuse to accept the decision of the Colonial Minister in favour of M. Le Vasser, opponent of M. De Villiers in the Tonkin election for the Colonial Council.

The C. N. Co.'s steamer Hangchow, having had the damage caused by a collision off Breker Point recently with what is generally believed to be the missing steamer St. Asaph made good, left for Shanghai this evening.

VICE-ADMIRAL DUPUIS, the new commander of the French Navy in the Far East, arrived at Saigon last week. The flagship Triomphant will be shortly paid off and put on reserve, being replaced by the Bayard, now on the way out.

THE latest monthly report of the manager of the Penjum gold mines may now be seen at the Company's office, and might be seen in this paper but that our advertising rate is two dollars per inch, and we are not running merely for fun. A special meeting of Penjum shareholders is to be held on Monday, the 5th inst., to discuss a new process.

THIS afternoon there was a full-dress parade of the Police Force at the Central Station, on the occasion of the presentation of prizes to successful competitors at the recent rifle competitions as well as the presentation of a Bellis medal to a Sikh constable who some time ago saved a woman from a watery grave in the harbour. Mrs. F. H. May presented the prizes and the Captain Superintendent of Police presented the medal, after which the Inspectors of the Force were photographed in a group.

THE London Lyric Company will celebrate their return to Hongkong by performing a sensational "flip bill" in the City Hall theatre to-morrow night, on a scale which is seldom seen out of the leading centres of Western countries. The programme begins with a single-act drama, "The Brothers," and concludes with several splendid new variety items by our very own Marie, and others. The main feature of the evening is the farcical comedy "Jane," in three acts. The plot is easy enough to follow even after very much dinner; a young man of wild disposition has imposed on his guardian and purse-bearer by pretending to have got married; and on investigations being made he is driven to keep up the deception, with the aid of "Jane"—Miss Marie Brian. The possibilities of painful situations may perhaps be imagined—sufficiently well to make everybody go and see them actually worked out. From the accounts in the Straits papers, the Company will hardly need much of a welcome in these columns, for the public will roll up as one man.

Mr. May.—I know my position without being dictated to by you, Mr. Francis.

Mr. Francis.—Order, please! Order! Members must address the President.

The President.—Your remarks, Mr. May, must be addressed to the chair.

Mr. May.—I was going to say that if Mr. Humphreys continues in what I consider a most uncalled-for and ungentlemanly proceeding, I shall prefer to leave the room.

Mr. Humphreys.—No, come now, I can't stand that even from you, Mr. May. I can't stand being called ungentlemanly.

Mr. Francis.—If Mr. May does as he said, it would perhaps be better for the Board and better for himself. I have not interfered in this discussion before, but I beg to point out that until Mr. Humphreys has to a certain extent concluded his remarks it is impossible for us, or even for that great genius the Captain Superintendent of Police, to say what the purport or object of his remarks may be, or how they appear to the subject. The Captain Superintendent of Police was decidedly premature in attempting to do it, and I think the best thing he could do would be to suppress his feelings or else leave the table.

Mr. May.—I know my position without being dictated to by you, Mr. Francis.

Mr. Francis.—I doubt it very much!

Mr. Humphreys.—(To the Captain Superintendent of Police)—I ask you to recall your remark about urgent/emergency proceedings. I think it was a hasty remark on your part. I do not think you should say that to me. You may think my remarks are uncalled for—that is your own opinion—but I do not think you have a right to call them ungentlemanly. I do not remember to have done anything ungentlemanly since I came to the colony, and I object to such a remark in reference to me, even by a gentleman whom I look upon as an old friend.

Now, sir, if you will allow me, after what Mr. Francis has said, I will go on, because, as I say, this is a reform measure, and I think I ought to be allowed more latitude at this meeting than has ever been allowed before.

I have seen people allowed to talk riot at this

Board by the half-hour; together and they have never been stopped, and now there is an important subject under discussion I am pulled up and called to order. Well, I am used to being called to order. I have been used all my life to being told off and beaten, but at the same time, I do think I ought to be allowed to speak to-day.

The President.—Yes, Mr. Humphreys, but—

Mr. Humphreys.—Allow me to finish—I am not so sure whether there could be quite as much as that. I do however think that if my countrymen in this Colony desire to govern themselves they will be allowed to do so. I do not believe in the self-government of Indians and Chinese, because it will take hundreds of years to educate them up to the standard of a race that has governed itself (with slight intervals of a century or so) from prehistoric times. The Celestial Monarchs, a new paper to be published by A. S. Watson & Co., Limited, will be issued and will discuss such matters fully. (Laughter.) In dealing with the question of local self-government in connection with the reform of this Board you must be careful to see that you do not get into the hands of a clique. We should not have a Justice of the Peace Board, and I would strongly advise that all Licences to sell spirituous and intoxicating liquors should be granted by this Board, popularly constituted, instead of under the motley crowd which constitutes the Justices of the Peace of this Colony, from which I should be very pleased to see my name removed. (Pleading it is for me to be removed.)

Mr. Humphreys.—I will try my best to do so.

The President.—Then will you continue, please, with your motion?

Mr. Humphreys.—Let me see—where had I got to? I was remarking that any junior clerk in a mercantile office would have done better than he (Mr. Mitchell-Innes) did in the Treasury, and yet any junior clerk in any mercantile office would have done better than he did in the Treasury, for instance, and yet for—

Mr. May.—In this order, Mr. Humphreys' remarks are but I do not see that they have any connection with the motion.

Mr. Humphreys.—I do not wish to be ruled out of order on this motion, because it is a motion of reform, and I think considerable latitude should be allowed. I can quite conceive that the remarks I am making are perhaps not exactly such as you will all agree with, and I do not expect to carry your sympathies with me all through, but at the same time I am speaking for the benefit of the colony, and for the reconstruction of this Board on a popular basis, and therefore I do think I ought to be allowed to continue my remarks. I do not wish to use any expression, and I do not think I have ever used—with one exception—anymore, that is too much pronounced. I certainly have never used an unfair expression towards any person in this colony and I never said a word behind a man's back that I was afraid to say to his face. Under these circumstances, sir, I beg that you may be allowed to proceed.

The President.—I think that what Mr. Humphreys did in the Treasury or what he did not do, is entirely out of point, that it has nothing whatever to do with the reconstruction of the Sanitary Board.

Mr. Humphreys.—I beg to differ. I think it has a great deal to do with the constitution of the Board. We do not want people with less ability than a junior clerk in a mercantile firm to be on this Board, and we want to avoid the possibility of that in the future. That is the motion to which I am speaking sir. I am speaking to the motion for the reconstruction of the Board and I do not want to depart from it. It is a reform motion, I know very well that it will not be quite palatable to many people in the colony and I do not care to whom it may be palatable or to whom it may not. I am going to say what I think.

The President.—I think if you bring your motion forward without dealing with individuals that it would be more in order. The work of an officer in the Treasury does not appear to me to have much to do with the subject.

Mr. Humphreys.—If you rule me out of order of course I must submit. I do think, however, that on this day in moving a motion of reform in the government of the colony, it should be allowed more latitude than could be permitted if we were discussing a simple question of drain pipes.

The President.—I am quite willing to allow every latitude but it appears to me that in dealing in this Board with the conduct of an officer in another department, too much latitude would be allowed, and if you would avoid doing that it would be more in order.

Mr. Humphreys.—Well then, sir, I cannot help it. I am going on to say something more in reference to that subject but if you rule me out of order I will not say any more about it. My remarks are three parts made and there are only a few words more, which would not make much difference, but I bow to the chair. You will see that what I have now to say comes in perhaps a little disconnectedly because it is not quite in sequence. I was about to say that I was quite contented and happy to be governed even with a strong hand arbitrarily before the condition of things was altered, that is to say when we were governed all over the world by gentlemen, but I do strongly object as a loyal Englishman to run the risk of being governed by any man who may be a scoundrel. (Hear, hear.) I contend, sir, that in this colony we are here to inculcate and promulgate British methods of thought, and we are on this Sanitary Board to carry out British methods of sanitation. I quite agree with one remark made by the mover of the motion, namely, that all communities are entitled to be heard, as was advocated in the speech of Lord Lansdowne which has been read, I quite agree that all communities should have every facility granted to make their wants known, and I think a Board of this description should endeavour to meet their wishes as far as possible. But that is quite a different thing to placing the control in the hands of other British subjects. As regards the present constitution of the Board, it cannot be said that any questions that have come before it have ever been looked upon by any single member except from the point of view of what is best to be done for the interests of the colony generally. We may have made mistakes, but I am perfectly certain that every member of this Board has shown either of these things. As regards the four official members, he has honestly tried to look at every question from the point of view I have named and for the public good. (Hear, hear.) Before anyone can reasonably ask for reconstruction it ought to be clearly shown that this Board is a failure, and I think that members elected by popular suffrage would do better. I do not think that the mover of this resolution has shown either of these things.
